School reports have come home with children today. We are having an open evening on Wednesday 13 July where you will have the opportunity to look at your child's work meet the class teachers.

We had a very successful summer fair last Friday afternoon and we raised £1530 for school funds. We would like to thank our fantastic fund raising committee for all their hard work and dedicating so much of their time because we wouldn't have such successful events without their commitment.

Our Fun Raisers would like your input into how they spend the money raised. We have therefore included a reply slip on the last page for you to send in your suggestions/ideas for new equipment for the children to use in school.

Community Art Recycling Project at Battlefield

Some of our children have been involved in Veolia's community art recycling project and were asked to go along to see the sculpture on Tuesday afternoon with the artist. Look out for the sculpture next time you visit Veolia Recycling Centre. More details about the sculpture is available on <http://www.veolia.co.uk/shropshire/community/art-recycling>

In last night's Shropshire Star they launched a competition to name the sculpture and it would great if our children could put their name ideas forward. We have attached an entry form to this newsletter. Please be aware that entrants must be over 16 years old, so parents/carers will have to enter on behalf of their child, and do remember to read their terms and conditions.

Name the Sculpture

COMPETITION

At our Household Recycling Centre at Battlefield, Shrewsbury, residents are used to seeing lots of waste materials being recycled. Now we're about to unveil a sculpture to celebrate the art of recycling – and we're asking you to give it a name!

Created by local artist Jessica Jackson, along with artist engineer Simon Micklejohn, the sculpture is made from recycled materials. It links the heritage of the Battlefield site to its future using a symbol that represents both – the arrow.

Jessica said, "The upcycled art is partly inspired by the symbol for recycling, a never-ending circle of arrows. The arc of that flight of arrows becomes a large arrow and beneath this arc is a modern wind sculpture all made from recycled metal. During the design stage I worked with pupils from Harlescott Primary School who helped with the design of the arrows."

The artists brief for the Battlefield sculpture was to produce a piece that reflected the ethos of recycling, as well as reflecting the history of the site of the 1403 Battle of Shrewsbury. This is where opposing armies first faced each other with long-bows. The piece has been predominantly produced from recycled materials, the dish base representing the earth, the ground over which a flight of arrows marks a past battle.

Now all that's needed to complete the sculpture is the right name.

If you think you've got a winning idea, please enter via our website at the address below:

Or complete and return the entry form below. All entries to be received by Thursday 21st July. The lucky winner will be chosen on Friday 29th July and will join our distinguished guests at the special naming ceremony on Tuesday 9th August. Good luck!
